- Sustainability risks are integrated into investment decisions, without the fund promoting environmental or social characteristics or having sustainable investment as a goal
- Sustainability risks are not relevant (explanation below)

The fund company's comment:

This financial product promotes environmental or social characteristics but does not have sustainable investment as a goal. The product may partially invest in assets that have sustainability as a goal, for example those that are classified as sustainable according to the EU regulations for sustainable investments.

In the investment strategy, the managers regularly take part of sustainability data that is analyzed and provide the manager with information about events, changes in the product life cycle or for the company other changes that may affect how the company considers negative consequences for sustainable development.

Sustainability-related characteristics that are promoted in the management of the fund, or that are included in the fund's objectives:

- Environmental characteristics (eg companies' impact on the environment and climate).
- Social characteristics (eg human rights, labor rights and gender equality).
- Practice for corporate governance (eg shareholders' rights, issues of remuneration to senior executives and anti-corruption).

The fund company's comment:

The sustainability aspects that are promoted by the fund are taken into account by making investments in companies that take responsibility for environmental, social and corporate governance factors in business decisions.

In the investment strategy of the fund, the investment manager considers the fund's long-term goal to comply with the Paris Agreement and the reduction of CO2 emissions over time. In each investment decision, the investment manager analyses and considers how and if a company is aligned to the overall investment goal of the fund.

For further information, see the section "Methods used to integrate sustainability risks, to promote environmental or social characteristics or to achieve a sustainability-related goal".

- No index has been selected as the reference value

The fund company's comment:

The fund is actively managed and does not use an index to determine whether the fund meets the environmental and social characteristics that the fund promotes.

Information on the EU Taxonomy for environmentally sustainable economic activities

The EU taxonomy is a classification system, establishing a list of environmentally sustainable economic activities.

According to the regulations, the proportion of a fund's investments that is aligned with the taxonomy must be reported.

Due to the lack of reliable data, it is currently not always possible to determine how and to what extent the sub-fund's underlying investments are taxonomy-aligned or take into account the EU criteria for environmentally sustainable economic activities. Therefore, the fund company assesses that at present it is not possible to provide reliable information on the proportion of the fund's investments that is aligned with the taxonomy.

The EU Taxonomy sets out a “do not significant harm” principle, which means that investments that contribute to a sustainability goal should not significantly harm any other sustainability goal. The “do no significant harm” principle applies only to those investments underlying the financial product that take into account the EU criteria for environmentally sustainable economic activities. The investments underlying the remaining portion of this financial product do not take into account the EU criteria for environmentally sustainable economic activities.
